

What's a civil case?

Civil cases are about settling disagreements between people. Civil cases are often heard in tribunals. Here are some examples of civil cases.

Terry bought a computer that didn't work. The shop refused to replace it. Terry wants his money back.

Mr and Mrs Brown have decided to split up and get a divorce.

June is refusing to pay her rent because she says the flat needs to be decorated by the landlord. The landlord said that he would do this.

Here are two more civil cases:

1. Ken's Cleaning Services says that Smith's Property Company hasn't paid a bill of £2,000 for office cleaning.
2. Julie broke her leg in a road accident. She's claiming compensation for her injury from the car driver.

Draw a cartoon strip about one of these cases to show what happened.

Usher